Here and There

HEMPSTEAD county is being looked over today by the third group of industrial dairy men to visit here since last May. The Blue Valley Creameries had a group of high officials here in May. A Pet Milk company representative appeared in June. And on Friday there arrived Bryan Blalock and D. B. Short, president and general manager, respectively of the Texas Milk Products company, operating under the trade name Babbling Brook Dairies, of Marshall, Texas.

Texarkana FERA Office Is Merged With Local Unit

Miller County Post Eliminated, Transferred to District Office Here

OVERHEAD REDUCED

Some Clerical Employees Dropped and Clerical Pay Is Reduced

The FERA offices at Texarkana will close Sunday, September 15 and will be transferred to Hope, it was learned here Friday.

Under the new set-up the administrative activity and all record or statistical work will be centered at Hope, which is the district office for this area.

It was pointed out that one of the purposes of the new arrangement is to reduce the administrative expense in the handling of the new WPA program, now that the relief phases are being eliminated by the federal government and relief turned back to the respective states and their units.

Persons employed on work projects supervised by the Texarkana office will find it necessary to be transferred to the WPA at Hope, if they expect to continue work, it was pointed out.

It was announced that all administrative work will be done in the district office at Hope, where all records will be kept or compiled.

Stenographers and clerical workers not transferred to Hope from Texarkana will be without jobs. A reduction in salary for clerical help will go into effect with the transferring of the Texarkana office here, it was announced.

New Sinclair Oil Station Is Opened

$4,000 Building, Walnut and Third, in Formal Opening Saturday

Formal opening of the new 700 Sinclair service station, Third and Walnut streets, will be held Saturday. The station was completed Friday at an approximate cost of $4,000.

Raymond Jones and Ervin Dodson will be in charge of the new station, which will operate day and night.

Two new calculating pumps, showing the exact amount of gasoline dispensed into an automobile tank and the exact amount of cost to the customer, have been installed.

A new power washing machine and an Aro greasing machine with other new equipment gives the station a modern lay-out. Mr. Jones and Mr. Dodson invite the inspection of the public.

Arkadelphia Votes Liquor Out, 315-56

Dry Forces Strongly Organized in South State College Town

ARKADELPHIA, Ark. — Arkadelphia voted overwhelmingly dry in Thursday's local option election, which will close the two locally licensed liquor stores 60 days after the vote has been certified. The vote was: For prohibition 315, against 56. Every one of the three wards went dry by heavy majorities.

Dry forces were organized strongly for many weeks, and saw that their supporters had paid poll taxes. The fact that this is a college town carried great weight in the campaign.

The dry organization has pledged co-operation with the authorities to keep the bootleggers at a minimum.

Nine Free Tuitions Offered for U. of A.

County Judge H. M. Stephens announced Friday the receipt of nine certificates entitling the holder to free tuition at the University of Arkansas.

The judge left the certificates at Hope Star, and they may be obtained by anyone wishing to matriculate at the school.

Hopkins' Quick Works Plan Wins

Roosevelt Favors It Over Permanent Program of Ickes

Rush Work Order Means Death of Waterworks, Permanent Programs

HYDE PARK, N. Y. — (AP)—President Roosevelt announced orders Friday for the Works Progress Administration (WPA) under Harry Hopkins to take over the works relief drive until the permanent Public Works Administration (PWA) program of Secretary Ickes reaches a greater volume of employment.

In a detailed explanation of the whole works problem Friday the president related that a parity Thursday provided a program for the coming six weeks with $5 millions additional for direct relief.

As for the contest between Ickes' public works plan and Hopkins' temporary works idea, Roosevelt said the problem was reduced to a proposition of dollars, men to be employed, and the time for completion.

Roosevelt said the bulk of the remaining 1 1/2 billions from the 4-billion fund would be spent in the next four months in temporary jobs.

Cities Support Ickes
LITTLE ROCK — The executive committee of the Arkansas Municipal League, representing more than 300 cities and towns, threw its support behind PWA Administrator Harold Ickes Thursday in his quarrel with WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins when it telegraphed President Roosevelt, urging that work relief funds be spent for works of a permanent nature.

Meeting in the offices of Mayor Overman, with President James J. Jordan, mayor of Fort Smith, presiding, the committee drafted a message deploring the fact that 26 Arkansas PWA project applications for $1,500,000 already have been rejected by Mr. Hopkins, and urging that the WPA allow large amounts for purchase of materials.

Cities' Telegram
"A great many projects applied for by our state have been rejected," the telegram said. "In our opinion, the

O. K. Allen Heads for Senate and Political Throne of Long

ROGERS, Ark. — (AP)—Dr. Albert A. Doran, Rogers osteopath, past grand master of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows of Arkansas, died early Friday following an operation Monday night for a ruptured appendix.

Husband and father may be next dictator of Louisiana... Mrs. Oscar K. Allen, son Asa Benton, and daughter Joyce.

NEW ORLEANS. — (AP)—Upon a mild-mannered, colorless man whose every move as governor was dictated by Huey P. Long may fall the mantle of the state dictator.

Gov. Oscar Kelly Allen, yanked from small-town obscurity and named as a puppet in high places, today appears to be the man who will assume leadership of the political machine which Long built.

Allen is expected to resign as governor, permitting James A. Noe, lieutenant governor, to succeed him. Noe then would appoint Allen to Long's seat in the U. S. Senate, for which Allen would be a candidate in January.

Allen would be a candidate in the Louisiana Democratic primaries in January.

Allen is a shining example of the type of men Long chose to be his lieutenants—men of mediocre ability who never would question his decisions and would carry them out with that obedience. Foes of Long always insisted that the senator carried Allen's undated resignation in his pocket to enforce strict adherence to

Selassie's People Spring From Cush, Son Biblical Ham

And Later, Many Jews Fled to Ethiopia After Fall of Jerusalem

ALL WERE FIGHTERS

Under Menelik 2nd Ethiopians Smashed Italians at Adowa in 1896

Ethiopia, for centuries little more than a name on the map of Africa, now is emblazoned in headlines that tell of the grim approach of war with Italy. What is the history, what is the story, of this native state that dares defy the might of Mussolini? Milton Bronner interestingly sketches the romantic legendary past of Ethiopia in the following article, the last of three written for this newspaper about Emperor Haile Selassie I—the Conquering Lion of Judah—and his fabulous subjects.

BY MILTON BRONNER
NEA Service Staff Correspondent

Dictator-Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy is fond of apostrophizing crowds of fellow countrymen by reminding them that they are the descendants of the ancient Romans and recalling the glory that was Rome.

If 11 Duce's potential foe, Emperor Haile Selassie I of Ethiopia, cared so do so, he could go Mussolini not one but a half-dozen better.

The beginning of the Ethiopian legend is like those of olden Rome, wrapped in the mists of legend, but the Ethiopian legends go back even farther in time. They go back, in fact, to the Old Testament. Haile Selassie's people claim descent from Cush, who was son of Ham, who in turn was son of Noah. They maintain that the word "Ethiopia," appearing in the Septuagint and the Vulgate, is the translation of "Cushites."

The Ethiopians set forth that the queen of Sheba, mentioned in the Bible, was a sovereign of their country and that out of the love that King Solomon bore her, grew the son from whom are descended the actual rulers of the Ethiopia of this very hour. The legend goes farther and says that when Sheba and Solomon's son escaped from the land of the Hebrews, he took with him the very Ark of the Covenant and that this still today is in possession of the land of the Ethiopians. Solomon flourished in the tenth century B. C.—a period when Rome was not even a collection of mud huts.

Even today the story of Ethiopia has not been worked out completely, but roughly it goes something like this: For back in time the land was conquered by the Egyptians, became one of their provinces and paid a annual tribute of oxen, gold, ivory, hides and slaves to the Pharaohs. In the eleventh century B. C. the Ethiopians successfully revolted, achieved their freedom and in the eighth century actually for a time held Egypt as a conquered land. The Egyptians later were freed, but Ethiopians later were freed, but Ethiopia remained independent thereafter. In Biblical times, when crusades were taken and the Jews lost into captivity, many of them escaped and settled in Ethiopia.

Muslims Isolate Ethiopia
With the rise of the Muslims in Arabia and their sweep through the Near East, Ethiopia was cut off from the world for a thousand years. The great historian Gibbon said the people at that time were forgetful of the world by whom they were forgotten. The country reappeared in actual

Laval Commits French to Support of League of Nations Covenant

GENEVA, Switzerland. — (AP)—Premier Laval of France Friday placed France in the ranks with Great Britain, Russia and smaller European nations in defense of the peace obligations of the League of Nations covenant.

"Our obligations are inscribed in the covenant," Laval told the League of Nations assembly. "France will not evade those obligations."

U. S. Strictly Neutral
HYDE PARK, N. Y. — (AP)—President Roosevelt announced Friday his endorsement of an appeal by Secretary Laval for adherence by quarreling countries overseas to the Kellogg pact, and expressed his concern over the situation.

The president made it clear if war does break out abroad this country will be very definitely neutral by recent congressional action.

WPA Projects Put Through for Limited Extension After Sept. 15

WPA projects have been approved for a partial continuance of the local ERA organization, Claude Mann, 7th regional director for WPA, announced here Friday.

Mr. Mann said appropriations were available for tools and equipment, watchman, re-employment aid, a telephone operator, and the handling of commodities—but all others will be "out" at the ERA office after September 15.

As many of the relief clients will be taken care of as possible by doubling up the crews, Mr. Mann said.

This is reported to be another step in final liquidation of the ERA over the nation, as PWA and WPA projects assume the unemployment load.

Battle Between God and the Devil

"Conflict of the Ages" Rev. Gibson's Subject on Thursday

The Rev. Oscar Gibson preached to a large crowd Thursday night, bringing to them one of the most interesting dramas in the Bible, which might be termed, "The Conflict of the Ages."

He showed how God promised a redeemer and how the devil tried to keep that redeemer from being born.

The Rev. Mr. Gibson traced the Bible from Gen. 3:15 to Gal. 4:4, 5 and did it in a most thrilling and instructive manner. The audience gave remarkable attention as they listened to this great warfare.

The subject for Friday night will be "How the Devil Tried to Keep Christ From the Cross."

Coach Hammonds Tells Rotarians of Improvement in Sport Over the Year

Criticism of ineligibility among local football players from elsewhere in the state was stoutly answered Friday by Coach Roy H. Hammonds of Hope High School when he pointed out to the Rotary club Friday noon that the local school has "gone down the line" for the rules this season.

Enforcement of eligibility rules is always difficult, Coach Hammonds said, because violations are so widespread that the average city is forced to wink at conditions at home in order to meet competition.

"But we aren't going to cheat simply because the other fellow does," he continued, pointing out that Hope has dropped four football players for the season opening September 20, due to scholastic failure. "There is a chance that Dick Moore's case may be reversed by the state association, but the other three are definitely out," Mr. Hammonds said.

Reviewing his own long experience as a director of athletic teams, Mr. Hammonds declared that organized school play has done much to improve the relations existing between the various cities of the state. He recalled one bitter visit to Hot Springs years ago when the game wound up in a fight. It was currently understood at that time that no team ever got a square deal away from home—but in this instance feeling was so bitter that

YOUR HEALTH

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

This is the third of a series of four articles on typhoid fever by Dr. Morris Fishbein, pointing out the constant danger of epidemics unless vigilance is maintained. His series treats of the disease, its cause, its course, and methods of treatment.

Dangerous Symptoms Mark Typhoid Course.

Typhoid fever follows a long and serious course once a person becomes infected. During the incubation period of from three to 21 days after germs enter the body, they develop and the patient develops a fever, loss of appetite, and sometimes a rash. The average length of time is 10 1/2 days.

The condition begins with the usual symptoms of infection, such as headache, general pains in the body, a feeling of exhaustion and loss of appetite. Sometimes there are chills.

Frequently there is nosebleed, and almost invariably there is disturbance of bowel action in the form of constipation or diarrhea.

The condition begins with the usual symptoms of infection, such as headache, general pains in the body, a feeling of exhaustion and loss of appetite. Sometimes there are chills.

The physician who examines a patient with typhoid fever makes his diagnosis from the history of the case and appearance of the symptoms, and also by careful studies of the blood.

It is possible to examine specimens of the blood and to determine by means of the so-called Widal test, named for the Frenchman who discovered it, whether the condition is caused by typhoid fever.

Any serious complications, such as hemorrhage, perforation of the bowel, and changes in the heart action and nervous system, demand prompt and careful attention by a competent physician.

What a Ski Jumper Has to Think About

If you have ever wondered what a ski jumper thinks about, types through "Winter Carnival," by Dick Morgan, will tell you.

From this book you can also learn something of the emotions of "that exile legion of life," the men who pilot racing bobsleds down icy mountainsides at express train speed; something, too, of the color, gaiety, and excitement of winter resort hotels, where skiing, hockey, and skating divide the time with tea dances, night club festivities, and masked balls.

"Winter Carnival" presents a fine description of scenes and events that most readers meet only in the news-reels. If you're a hankering for a winter vacation at Lake Placid (the locale of the book is not named), you

The BLUE DOOR

By Rachel Mack © 1935 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
RUTH WOODSON, a pretty, high-spirited girl of 18, traveling in the mid-west in search of work, is put off a bus in the little town of Woodville, when she runs out of money. A storm is breaking and she seeks refuge in an old stone mansion with a blue door. Flitting from hunger, Ruth is startled by a queer old housekeeper, BERTHA GIBBS, also known as "PENNY," and by JOHN McNEILL, from next door.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XV

SOON after Penny's return from town the groceries arrived. Ruth helped her put them away on the pantry shelves. Studying the ample outlay, Ruth suggested: "Suppose I make you a cake, Penny? A day-late birthday cake?"

"My!" exclaimed Penny in surprise. "That would be grand. I can't recall when I had a cake—but you can cook, Miss Elaine?"

"I can cook better than I can play golf," replied Ruth impressively and with secret humor. "I learned it at school."

Penny ventured timidly, "Could you somehow make the icing pink, Miss Elaine? I always thought it would be elegant to have a cake with pink icing."

SHE had just begun to eat, wearing a blissfully happy expression on her face, when there came echoing through the house the sound of a knocker striking a door. Her jaws stopped in mid-air, as it were, while she hunched forward to listen. The knocking came again. "Old Bertha laid down her cake and got up. 'I'll go see who 'tis,' she said. 'It's likely a peddler. You wait here—'" She lighted an extra candle and went out into the hall, closing the heavy door behind her.

Ruth tasted the cake critically. It was light and fine textured and utterly delicious. She ate a second slice, glowing with innocent pride in her culinary accomplishments. She thought, "I wonder if John McNeill likes cake?"

When she realized that she was day dreaming in this sentimental fashion she blushed furiously and jumped to her feet. "I won't!" she told herself sharply. "I'll like him and enjoy him while I'm here, but I won't fall so hard I'll have a broken heart to carry away with me!"

She began to collect the dishes and to take them to the kitchen. She forced herself to stop thinking of John. Instead, she disciplined her mind by recalling the most absorbing book she had ever read. The book was a fairly old one—Beau Geste—and if one of the attractive young men who faced peril in the Foreign Legion had John McNeill's face, she let it pass. At least there was no heroine in the story who looked like herself.

She drew hot water and washed the dishes. It was not until she heard Penny's returning footsteps in the hall butler's pantry that Ruth realized how long the old woman had been gone. During the past half hour she had all but forgotten Penny's existence.

"I saved your cake for you, Penny," she said. "It's there on the plate. Whatever kept you so long?"

She turned from the window and looked at the clock. It was the dark hour, "I guess he's terribly in demand because he's so terribly eligible." She wondered if Mrs. Bennett's niece was attractive and tried not to hate her.

RUTH thought, looking across at the dark hour, "I guess he's terribly in demand because he's so terribly eligible." She wondered if Mrs. Bennett's niece was attractive and tried not to hate her.

But suddenly the mirror showed her something else of interest. Another picture. It reflected the shadowy dining room behind her. At the table stood Penny, her activities etched by the light of a candle that stood on the table beside her. She was cutting away half the cake and wrapping it in a napkin. She was doing it hastily and shyly.

"Well!" thought Ruth. "Of all things! It's her own cake. Why on earth does she have to act that way about it?"

She went hurriedly to the stairs as if she had seen nothing, and when she had gained her own room and closed her door, she carefully locked it.

Indian Summer

These were the days left over from summer's design was complete. Remnants of green on the cloyer. Fragments of rose-bloom and heat. Between frost and the leaves last falling. Earth takes them up once more. And fringers them, briefly receding. A gown that she lately wore.

Hope was out on mass Thursday evening to attend the Pre-Opening of the newly remodeled Geo. W. Robinson Co. department store. The popularity of this store, one of the finest department stores in the southwest has gained through its years of service was fully demonstrated on Thursday evening, by the crowds of well-wishers, friends and admirers that thronged the store from 7:30 to 10 o'clock. The many, many handsome floral tributes that added their beauty to the attractive new arrangement of new merchandise in the latest styles, and the "bright-as-day" lighting fixtures that shed their rays over this vast display of quality merchandise. Each caller was asked to register, and received attractive souvenirs, and were invited to guess the number of eggs in a basket. The contest was won by Mrs. C. C. Lewis, and her manager, Mr. C. C. Lewis, and assistant manager Mr. C. F. Routon Sr., and courteous clerks dispensed hospitality and politeness to the many improvements and conveniences that had been made in the remodeling. Hope is to be congratulated on having such a store, and those of us who were fortunate enough to call the late George W. Robinson, "Friend," couldn't help but feel that one of his dreams had come true.

Dr. Fred R. Harrison spent Friday in Newport, where he conducted the funeral services of Mr. J. Churchman, who passed on at his home in this city, Thursday morning.

Mrs. R. V. Herndon, Mrs. L. W. Young, and Mrs. Kline Snyder were Thursday luncheon guests of Mrs. H. Campbell at the Garner Hotel in Nashville.

The Women's Auxiliary of the First Presbyterian church will meet at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon at the church.

Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Herndon were Friday visitors in Little Rock.

George W. Robinson has returned to the University of Texas, Austin, after a summer's vacation with his mother, Mrs. George W. Robinson.

Miss Marie Antoinette Williams and brother, Glen, are spending a few days in Little Rock, guests of their aunt, Mrs. Edward Woodford.

Gus Wise of Los Angeles, Calif., is the house guest of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Erwin.

Cotton Belt Train Derailed; None Hurt

15 Freight Cars Pile Up Near Pine Bluff—Arch-Bar Reported Broken

PINE BLUFF, Ark.—(AP)—Fifteen cars of a northbound Cotton Belt freight train left the track near here early Friday and piled up in an adjoining field.

The rails were torn up for a distance of approximately 200 feet. No one was injured as far as could be determined several hours later. A broken arch-bar in one truck of an oil car was blamed for the accident.

Hill Wins Here in Straight Falls

Defeats Dutch Kennett Without Extending Himself Thursday Night

Frankie Hill maintained his unblemished record before local wrestling fans Thursday night when he took two straight falls to win the feature event from Dutch Kennett. Hill has been undefeated here.

Hill was a top-heavy favorite from the start, but apparently put out no great effort. He got himself in several tight places and absorbed a lot of punishment. The first round went almost an hour before Hill decided to pin his opponent.

The second round was short, lasting only about a minute. Hill applied a backbend and the match was over.

Sailor Way defeated Herb Sampson in the preliminary, much to the surprise of the crowd. Sampson won the first fall in 12 minutes. Way appeared to disadvantage in weight and ring experience, but managed to take the second fall.

The third round lasted about five minutes, ending when Way luckily applied a hold that brought Sampson's shoulders to the mat.

Promoter Donald Moore refereed the preliminary but not to the liking of the crowd. Jack Cheney was the third man in the ring in the feature bout, and his officiating was no better.

CHURCH OF CHRIST West Fifth and Grady Streets Glenn A. Parks, Minister Bible Study 10 a. m. Preaching services 11 a. m. and at 7:45 p. m. Morning subject, "An Elavated People." Evening subject, "Behold Your King." A cordial invitation is extended to all.

CHURCH OF THE NAZARENE South Elm Street J. J. Douglas, Pastor The regular services of the Church of the Nazarene will continue as of the past. The Sunday Bible School will meet at 9:45 a. m. with the pastor acting as superintendent until such time as superintendent will be appointed. The regular morning message by the pastor will embrace the line of thought of "Arising and Building." The burden of the message will be found in Isaiah 66:8, "As soon as Zion Traveled, She Brought Forth Her Children." Especially do we wish that all Nazarenes be present, for the message is to be of such a nature that they will feel the necessity of laying hold of the task that is before us. The evening service at 7:30 will be of special interest to the young people, with the opportunity that the Church of the Nazarene offers at this stage of the World's history. We are living in the most critical time that the world has ever known. Hear the pastor's words concerning the opportunities for young people during this period of time. During the revival that is being held at the city hall by the Rev. Oscar Gibson there will not be any services during the week nights as the pastor will want to be in attendance to these services.

There has in the past been some question as to whether or not the Church of the Nazarene will continue as a local denomination in Hope. This question is answered by the fact that arrangements have been made to carry on a permanent and a persistent program in other places. So all that are interested in the local work here are assured that we are here to do the work for which the Nazarenes were called. A hearty welcome awaits all.

FIRST BAPTIST Wallace R. Rogers, Pastor Regular services of the First Baptist church will begin at 9:45. All Sunday school members are urged to be present at this time.

The pastor will preach at the morning hour. A large chorus choir under the direction of Mrs. F. L. Padgett will furnish music.

The Baptist Training Union will meet at 6:30.

There will be no night service at the church. We are dismissing in order to worship with the Rev. Oscar Gibson who is conducting a revival at the city hall.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN The C. Brewster, Pastor The customary services will be held during the coming Lord's day as follows: Sunday school with classes for all ages at 9:45 a. m. Morning worship at 11 o'clock. Young Peoples Vesper Service 6:30 p. m. Evening service 7:30 p. m. No Mid-Week service in view of the semi-annual meeting of Ouachita Presbytery to be held in the Ebenezer church Tuesday and Wednesday.

history only in the 16th century of our era when Portuguese explorers reached it. At times Portuguese kings sent troops to help the people of Ethiopia repel Moslem invaders. The history of the country was a confused and contradictory chronicle of the struggles of the rulers of the various provinces to become top dog. Chief of these provinces were Tigre in the north, Amhar in the center, Gogjam in the northwest and Shoa in the south. Leadership usually fell to the ruler of Amhar, who had the stoutest warriors, and he became Negusa Nagast—King of Kings.

In modern times the first noteworthy figure was Theodore the Third, born in 1818, who, starting out as son of a small chief, made himself Emperor. He made the mistake of imprisoning some British. England sent an expeditionary force under Sir Robert Napier, who in 1867 captured and destroyed Theodore's stronghold town of Magdalla, and the Emperor killed himself.

Menelik II Was Greatest The greatest king was Menelik the Second, born in 1842. Son of the King of Shoa, he led a troubled life of Theodore, who had conquered his father. But upon Theodore's death, Menelik had made himself strong enough to proclaim himself successor to the throne of all Ethiopia. It was Menelik, who signed a treaty with the Italians, who by this time had colonies in Eritrea and Somaliland. The Italians claimed the treaty gave them a protectorate over Ethiopia. This Menelik denied and the two countries soon were at war, resulting in a terrible defeat of the Italians at Adowa in March, 1896. In the peace treaty which was signed at Addis Ababa, the complete independence of Ethiopia was recognized by Italy.

In his own country one of the power-ruler of Wages, who refused to recognize Menelik as his leader. In a civil campaign which followed Ras Ali was captured. He was a Moslem. All the greatest Ethiopian kings have been Christians of the ancient church which is connected with the Coptic church of Egypt. Menelik had his captive brought before him:

"You will become a Christian and marry my daughter. The alternative is death."

Grandson Became Emperor Ali chose to live and become the Ras Mikael. When Mikael died in 1913, he designated Mikael's son, his grandson, Lij Jasu to be his successor. Lij had short shift. He was disolute, he antagonized many of the chiefs and, worst of all, he was rumored to have lapsed back to the Moslem faith of his forefathers. Revolt soon began to spread in the country, spurred on when the Abuna, or head of the Christian church, excommunicated Lij in 1916. The great chiefs then proclaimed as Empress Zauditu, daughter of Mikael. At the same time, they chose as regent and heir to her throne, Ras Tafari, a grand nephew of Mikael.

And Ras Tafari, who today is Emperor Haile Selassie I and ruler of Ethiopia in his own right, now prepares to write a sanguinary new chapter in his country's none-too-pacific history. The modern Roman legions of Dictator Mussolini are pounding at the gates of Ethiopia.

Haile Selassie—the Conquering Lion—is at bay.

all games—and the public response and the improvement in relations between cities proved long since that we were right in making this reform.

Coach Hammonds announced on invitation this year. Either next Tuesday or Wednesday night he will hold a free exhibition at the high school stadium, when sample football plays will be run off in "slow motion," with an explanation of the play by electric loudspeaker. Then, in a real game, the football fans will be better prepared to recognize and follow the same plays at high speed.

Club guests Friday were: County Judge H. M. Stephens, of Blewins, and Bryan Blacklock and D. B. Short, of Marshall, Texas. Mr. Blacklock is president, and Mr. Short is general manager, of the Texas Milk Products company, whose trade name is "B-B-Bling Brook Dairies." They are looking over the whole-milk supply of Hempstead county.

Cubs Superstitious as Victories Grow

Manager Grimm Drives Nail in Heel Each Time Team Wins

CHICAGO—Along about noon Thursday, Charlie Grimm, Chicago Cubs' manager, entered the Cubs' club house. He went to his locker, picked up his right baseball shoe, found his hammer and a long, thin nail.

He hammered the nail into the side piece of leather in heel.

This unusual ritual was performed for the ninth straight day. Before each of the eight consecutive games the team has won, Grimm has hammered a nail in the shoe's heel.

Explained Charlie: "It's just an old superstition with me. I did it in 1932 when we were having that great winning streak which led to a pennant. But honesty compels me to admit that I tried to woo Lady Luck the same way in the 1932 world series with the Yankees. I have the shoe at home that I used. It has four holes in the heel. You see, when we lose, I pull out the nail."

During this winning streak other members of the team are paying high court to their numerous pet superstitions.

Timothy is inevitably associated with Paul. The relationship between them was almost as real as if Timothy had been Paul's own son. It did credit to the disciples as well as the master.

Not every one who has the privilege of learning from a great teacher has the spirit and the willingness to learn or has inspired by his great example.

Paul, with all his might, had elements of weakness. He was not above criticism. There are indications also, here and there, that he was rather an exacting master and a strict disciplinarian.

Timothy might have found occasion for disregarding or rebelling against Paul's instructions and discipline, but he had the good sense to perceive the greatness of the man who was willing to guide and instruct him, and evident of his disciples.

Fortunately, out of this relationship there have come the two letters in our New Testament that are so instructive and vital for youth today. Paul was now an old man. As he himself puts it, he was "ready to be offered," and the shadow of the martyr's death was already hanging over him.

This second letter was to be among his last writings. There is in it, therefore, something of the quality of a last will and testament.

Paul had no worldly goods with which to endow Timothy, but he could leave to him an heritage of good will and guidance greater than any material endowment could give. His greeting to Timothy is full of tender affection. He calls him "my beloved child."

He thanks God "with prayer unceasing" for what Timothy has meant to him, and speaks of the longing to see him. It is a very tender picture of the inner life of a man who was so strong in conscience and so firm in will that nothing could move him.

Is not that the supreme miracle of Christianity—the tenderness that it combines with greatness, the love and the unselfishness that it allies with the strength and rugged discipline that other men have associated with ambition and conquest?

Whether or not Timothy needed it, Paul gives him an earnest exhortation toward faithfulness and zeal. Perhaps it was needed. A young man of gifts does not always have the energy and zeal to display these gifts and use them aright.

Timothy surely must have felt the thrill of a young man to whom an older man, who had finished the race and who had fought a good fight, was committing a further trust. What inspiration to carry on there must have been in the realization that Paul trusted him and looked to him to continue the mission that he had accomplished so nobly!

Elsewhere Paul urged Timothy to endure hardness as a good soldier of Jesus Christ. The task on which he was launched was not one that could be performed by enthusiasm and earnestness alone. It called for qualities of stability and courage and endurance. We have every reason to believe that Timothy had good Paul's confidence and hope.

his commands. Licensed Teacher at 15 But Too Young for Job

The governor was a native of Winn parish, as was Lomb. Born August 8, 1882, Allen knew little but hard work and hard knocks in his boyhood. He walked three miles through woods to a rural school, later attending grade school in the county seat, Winfield.

In 1897, at 15, Allen was awarded a teacher's certificate, but being too young to instruct other children he returned to the farm. Seven years later he began teaching and in a year saved enough to attend normal school at Springfield, Mo. Returning to Louisiana, he resumed teaching and also operated a sawmill on a part-time basis.

But young Allen hoped for better things, so he returned to his studies, this time at Trinity University, Waxahachie, Texas. Another fling at teaching.

Allen's father died several years ago. His mother lives in Shreveport, as do a brother, Ira, and a sister, Mrs. A. M. Broyles. Another brother, A. Leonard Allen, is a Winfield attorney, and another sister, Mrs. J. Ira Abrams, resides in Sikes, La.

The governor is a lifelong member and prominent layman of the Baptist church, a Mason (Royal Arch Shriner), and a member of the Knights of Pythias.

A man of little means when he entered politics, Allen has become interested in many oil developments in the state and is said to be very wealthy.

ing, from 1909 to 1911, and then he left the schoolroom definitely behind.

Romance came to him in 1911, when he was working in Paris, Texas, as all-round helper in a construction crew. He married Miss Florence Love, and in 1913 they returned to Winfield.

Huey Took Stump to Aid Allen's Rise in Politics. Here began the political career of Allen, and the start of his long association with Huey Long. Allen was named clerk of the Winn parish police jury and then, in 1916 was elected assessor, aided by Huey's vigorous campaigning.

In 1918, Allen repaid his friend, with financial aid and political influence, when Huey was elected to the state Public Service commission.

When Long made his unsuccessful campaign for governor in 1924, Allen was his campaign manager in the Fifth district.

Career Handmade by His Friend, "The Kingfish"

In 1928 began their march to the top. When the votes were counted, Huey was governor and Allen a state senator, immediately being made floor leader of the Long forces. He resigned a few months later, however, at

Basket Nine Will Play Gurdon Here

Ray McDowell Sunday to Pitch Deciding Contest of 8-Game Series

The third and deciding game between Hope Basket company's team and the Beirne Lumber company team of Gurdon will be played at Fair park at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon, it was announced Friday.

Each team has won one game, out of the previous two encounters. Hope will pin its faith on Ray McDowell, well known local pitcher.

Long advanced to the U. S. Senate in 1930 and this again spelled advancement for Allen. In 1932 the former school teacher was elected to the governor's chair, with Huey directing his campaign and making his speeches.

Smith Preaches at Huey Long's Grave

Funds Received on 31 State Projects

"Here Rests His Body But His Spirit Never Will Rest" Says Friend

$1,512 Approved for Clerical Aid for Local County Health Officer

BATON ROUGE, La.—"Oh God, don't let me die; I have a few things more to do."

These were the last words of Huey Long, United States senator from Louisiana, prospective third party candidate for president, and leader of the national share-the-wealth crusade, as related Thursday at his burial by the Rev. Gerald Smith, who pronounced the funeral eulogy before a crowd that massed for blocks in front of the state capitol.

The young minister, national organizer of the Long movement, was with the senator when he died as a result of bullets fired by Dr. Carl A. Weiss, of Baton Rouge, Monday night.

Mr. Smith took as his text John 15:13. Of his fallen chief he said:

"Hated cannot touch him now. He fell in the line of duty. We who adore him have a gnawing hunger for a new order. He had no touch of religious or racial prejudice. He said to me once:

"I know the arms of God are around me every minute."

"He was like the ocean in influence. He was a giant of history. His passing so they think, has relieved his arch enemies. Take up the torch and complete the task. I was with him when he died. As one who has no political ambitions, I challenge you, my comrades, to complete the task. He was a martyr, an apostle of progress. His life was an unfinished symphony."

LITTLE ROCK—A list of 31 Arkansas WPA projects for which Comptroller General McCarl released $221,667 Wednesday was received here Friday.

The list for which funds have been released included the following:

$1,512 to provide clerical help for health officers in Hempstead, Clark, Little River and LaFayette counties.

"The lives of great men do not end with the grave.

"They just begin. This place marks not the resting place of Huey Long; it marks only the burial ground for his body. His spirit shall never rest as long as hungry bodies cry for food, as long as lean human frames stand naked, as long as homeless wretches haunt this land of plenty."

No expense was spared to make the funeral of Long the most elaborate in Louisiana history.

Florists estimated the floral offerings to value around $25,000. The beautiful silk-lined, bronze casket Long was buried in was said to have cost $5,000.

All available space in the rotunda of the state capitol where the senator's body was reviewed in state was flooded with a gorgeous display of flowers of every classification.

A large bouquet of orchids was sent to the bier by the royal family of England. It was reported that the design cost $1,500.

surest way to restore not only the workers to moral living conditions, but the manufacturers, including commercial and merchandising organizations would be for the approval of projects submitted through the PWA asking for grants and loans to be repaid over a term of years permitting permanent improvements in the several municipalities applying.

"Permanent construction of this nature carries a higher wage scale, permits better standards of living and goes further towards accomplishing an early recovery than any other type of project. The Arkansas Municipal League, therefore, urges you to give due consideration to the applications forwarded to the PWA offices for the construction of waterworks, sewer systems, public buildings, etc., in compliance with regulations set up by the PWA engineers."

The Arkansas projects turned down by Mr. Hopkins were largely for sewers and water systems where the administrator contended that the construction costs were too high for the amount of labor provided. Mr. Hopkins has taken the position the entire relief fund should be spent primarily to give employment.

Graves District Leader

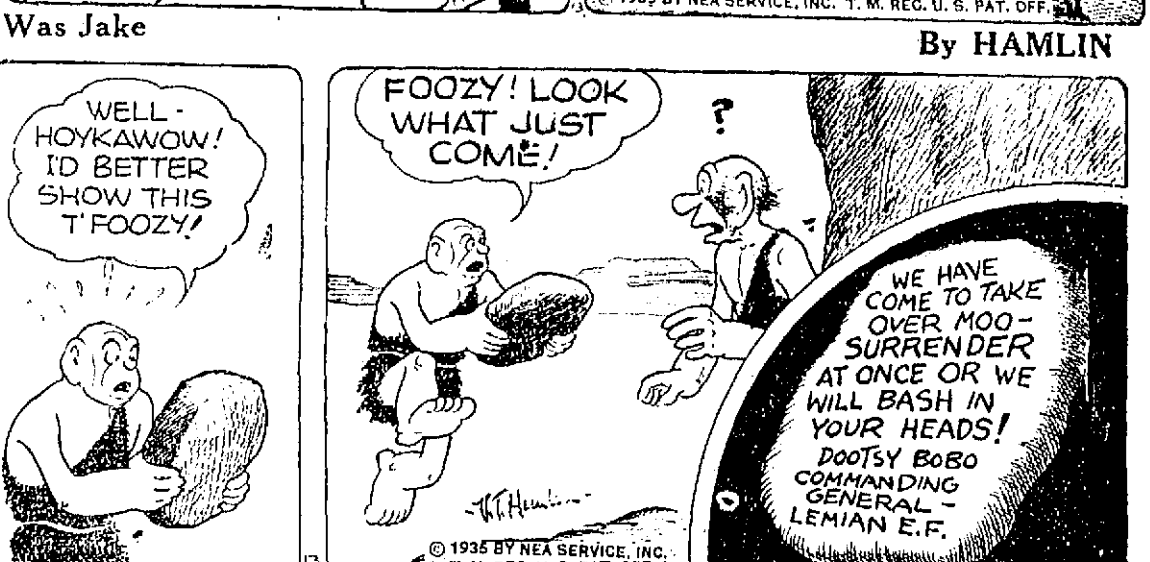

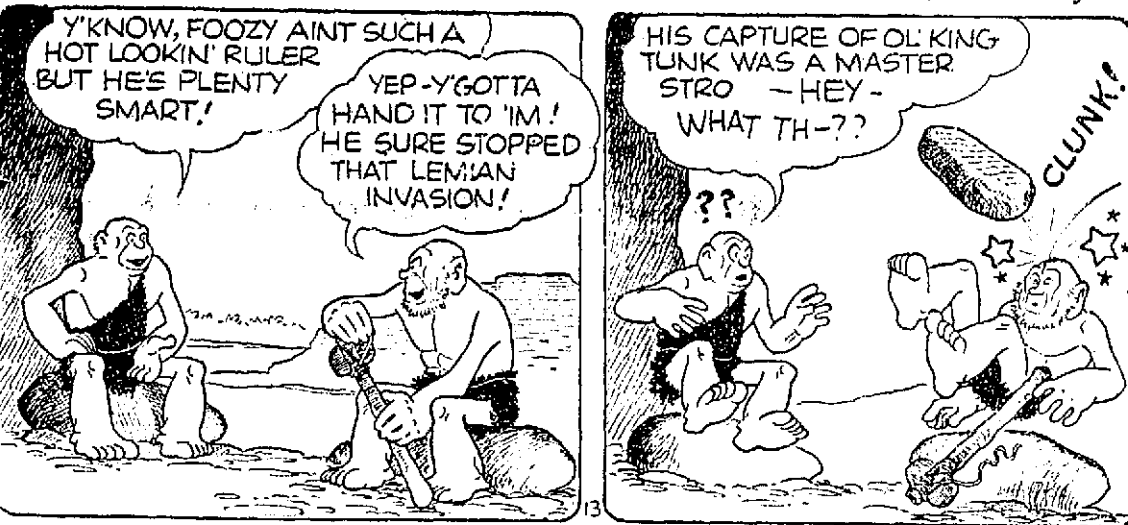

The Municipal League divided the state into eight districts for organization purposes, naming Mayor Albert Graves of Hope as vice-president in charge of District Three, the southwestern counties.

Mayor Graves did not attend the Little Rock meeting. He told The Star Friday; but he was present at the July meeting of the league.

He said he expected to ask the Hope city council to back up the major objectives of the municipal government organization.

Dizzy Hurls Cards to Win Over N. Y.

St. Louis Gets First Blood From Giants—But Cubs Continue Streak

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—(P)—Dizzy Dean pitched St. Louis to a 5-to-2 triumph over the New York Giants Thursday in the opening game of the "crucial" struggle.

The Chicago Cubs kept pace one game behind by defeating Brooklyn.

The Cardinals made short work of Carl Hubbell, Giant southpaw star, pounding him for four runs and seven of their nine hits in his five-inning stay. The fifth run was scored off Allyn Stout in the eighth. Harry Gumbert, youthful right-hander just up from Baltimore, pitched perfect ball through the sixth and seventh innings.

For the first seven innings Dean gave only three hits. He eased up a bit toward the finish and was nicked for four more and a second run toward the finish. Hank Leiber was the only effective New York hitter. He got a double and two singles. Dizzy got eight strikeouts to bring his season's total to 165. He fanned Pinch Batesman Mark Koenig and Joe Moore with two on base in the eighth and Terry with one on in the ninth.

The Cards got their first run in the first. Jack Rothrock and Manager Frank Frisch hoisted singles, just beyond the reach of the infielders. Jim Collins scored Rothrock with a line single to center. Terry Moore hit his sixth home run of the season into the left field bleachers in the second.

With two out in the fourth Dean singled and went to third when Pepper Martin bounced a vicious drive off Dick Bartell's glove and made it good for a double with a headlong slide. Rothrock followed with a single that brought them both home. The final Cardinal run came on Jim Collins' triple and Spud Davis' single.

The Giants scored in the fifth when Leiber doubled and Gus Mancuso singled him in. They added another in the ninth as Travis Jackson singled, took second while Ott was being tossed out and scored on Leiber's base hit.

Frank Frisch Put Hornsby in Eclipse

Here's the Inside Story of Famous Cardinal-Giant Swap in 1926-27

By HARRY GRAYSON

Sports Editor, NEA Service

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—If Detroit kicked Mickey Cochrane in the pants right now, the storm of criticism couldn't begin to compare with the raucous roar of resentment that marked Rogers Hornsby's departure from St. Louis on December 20, 1926.

Hornsby had piloted the Cardinals to their first pennant in their 39 years in the National League. That's a long wait. He had followed this up by driving the Red Birds to victory over the New York Yankees in the world series. The Texan had been the idol of St. Louis fans and their idea of a second baseman since 1915.

Hornsby, the .400 hitter, swapped to the rich New York Giants, and for whom?

"Frankie Frisch and Jimmy Ring," explained Sam Breadon and Branch Rickey, blithely.

Frisch, the New Yorker, meant little in St. Louis at the time in face of the fact that he figured in a deal for the heroic Hornsby. Pitcher Ring was considered through.

Civic organizations, headed by the chamber of commerce, protested. Bennett Clark, now a United States senator from Missouri, and countless other notables took vigorous exception.

Frisch Facts Frns' Fury This was the situation that Frisch faced when he sauntered into the Breckinridge, Fla., camp of the Cardinals in the spring of 1927.

What brought about this deal, the most spectacular transaction in all baseball history?

In the summer of 1926, Hornsby had told Breadon that it was either "myself or Rickey."

Breadon's reply to that was made to Rickey, who shoestringed the Cardinals to where they are today, and who offered to tear up a contract as general manager that still had two years to run.

"Branch," said Breadon, "I don't know what I'd do without you." Breadon, president of the St. Louis club, head reneched a situation in his dealings with Hornsby where he could go no farther. He was willing to pay Hornsby $50,000 for one year, but he was not willing to cough up $50,000 annually for three years, which were the terms presented by the super-egotistical young man who ran his club.

Flash Eclipses Hornsby

So Hornsby went to the Giants for Frisch and Ring. John McGraw sought a counter-attraction for the great Babe Ruth of the Yankees, who had langed into the New York scene like the Normandy.

McGraw had had words with Frisch the season before and this was his way of penalizing "his boy."

But even the masterful McGraw, who had seen the Fordham Flash take his Giants to four consecutive National League flags and two world championships, underestimated the Bronx boy. And the canny Rickey, who advised Breadon then, as he does now, won a great decision.

Rickey took many things into consideration when he made this momentous decision.

First, he knew that only one second baseman could replace Hornsby, and that his name was Frank Francis Frisch, Jr.

Rickey weighed the fact that Frisch was two years younger than Hornsby and that he had been subjected to five years less of baseball wear and tear.

Rickey Psychology Clicks

Hornsby was the better power hitter, but Frisch was the superior run getter. Frisch was a fine team man and easy to handle. Hornsby was a bone of contention. Frisch was a daring base-runner, which was Hornsby's weakest point.

Rickey's psychology clicked perfectly. Frisch, out to show up his idol, McGraw, enjoyed his greatest season. Hornsby hit .361 for the Giants, but Frisch hit .337 for the Cardinals and swiped 48 bases to Hornsby's 9. Frisch scored many more runs. He accepted 1037 fielding chances at second base, breaking all existing records.

The Cardinals, with the toughest kind of breaks and with a higher percentage than they had in their gon-falon-gathering campaign of the year before, barely were nosed out by the Pittsburgh Pirates. New York pulled up third.

McGraw traded Frankie Frisch to the Cardinals, and with him went the heart of the old Giants.

Long Lieutenant

Oversees an unruly mob is Adj. Gen. Ray E. Fleming, commandant of the state militia. His force of 2,500 has been unwaveringly loyal to the general and, through him, to the administration.

Almost as powerful is Col. E. P. Roy, leader of the highway police. What his band of 500 lacks in numerical strength is made up by the strategic positions it normally occupies.

But there is a third and even more dangerous point to this military question mark. He is Brig. Gen. Louis F. Guerre, head of the state Bureau of Criminal Identification. Under his command are Louisiana's secret police, regarded by the late senator's friends as the state's G-men but considered by his enemies to be an unscrupulous organization as ruthless as the Muscovite G. P. U.

Nobody knows how many men General Guerre could muster. Nobody knows who is enrolled in this all-powerful brigade.

Thursday General Guerre's wide-eyed emissaries shuffled through the waiting throngs, testing the temper of the crowd, taking its pulse, listening and reporting to their chief. The man to whom General Guerre awards allegiance will control the eyes and ears of the state. The man whom General Fleming and Colonel Roy elect to follow will control the breeches.
